Weak rupee triggers heavy NRI remittances

DUBAI: Most of the money exchange houses in the UAE have registered a surge in demand for Indian Rupee (INR) amid the weak INR trend, according to a top local exchange house. An official of the exchange house said that the rupee is more than 20% cheaper than the rate prevailing in the domestic market. The exchange house, which has branches in the UAE, including Dubai, has seen a 25 to 30% increase in the normal remittance transactions.

The rupee weakness is attributed to the removal of zero and negative rates from the Euro and US dollar. The official added that the INR has also increased significantly due to the recent rate hike by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI).

The INR has been on a steady decline over the past few months, resulting in a significant increase in the number of remittances from the UAE.

The official said that the INR is expected to remain weak for the next few months due to the ongoing geopolitical tensions and economic uncertainty.

Reliance to sell $15b stake in refining unit to Saudi Aramco

MUMBAI: Reliance Industries has announced the sale of its refining and chemical business unit to Saudi Aramco for $15 billion. The deal, which values Reliance’s oil-to-chemicals business at $75 billion, is expected to complete within 18 months.

The deal, valued at $15 billion, includes the sale of Reliance’s oil refineries, chemical plants, and other assets to Saudi Aramco. The transaction is expected to close by the end of this year.

The Aramco deal is part of Reliance’s strategy to focus on its core businesses and divest non-core assets. The company has been selling non-core assets to raise funds to invest in its core businesses.

The deal is expected to be completed within 18 months, and the transaction is expected to be completed by the end of this year.

Soon, travel from Mumbai to Elephanta Caves in just 14-minutes

Mumbai: Connecting Mumbai with the Elephanta Caves, the longest ropeway project in India, will be clear soon! The Government is working on a proposal to allow 100 per cent foreign direct investment (FDI) in the manufacturing sector under the automatic route. A manufacturer is planning to raise fresh capital to meet future capital requirements which are expected to outstrip the bank’s, according to the Reserve Bank in its annual report for the fiscal year 2018-19. Last year, Watsa’s Fairfax In- vestments Corporation acquired a 51 per cent stake in the lender for around Rs 440 crore, fol- lowing which the Reserve Bank in- structed it to repay its Sep- tember 2018 NPA.

The first time the central bank had ap- proved one of Watsa’s fund man- agement into a domestic pri- vate sector bank by a for- eign investor. While the bank had received approval for the INR 350-crore capital hike in 2018, it did not go ahead with the listing at that time.

According to the ex- isting foreign investment policy, companies can opt for 100 per cent direct investment (FDI) if it is permitted in the manu- facturing sector under the automatic route. A manu- facturer is also allowed to sell products manufactured in India through wholesale and retail, as well as e-commerce, according to the Government’s April stand.”

Why Vistara has launched international flights?

V istara, the joint venture airline between Tata Sons and Singapura Airways, launched its international operations earlier this year, commencing flights to Singapore from Delhi. With these flights, Vistara became the first beneficiary of revocation of the 3/20 rule for international flights.

The move is significant as any Indian carrier should complete at least five years of operations in the domestic market, and have at least 20 aircraft in its fleet before it is given permission to fly on international routes. In 2018, however, with the new civil aviation policy, the Centre did away with the five-year clause of the rule. This meant that new airlines would need to have 20 aircraft deployed on domestic operations before they could be allowed to fly internationally.

What does it mean for Vistara? With the launch of its international flights, Vistara aims to play a vital role by the collapse of Jet Airways, a premium tier airport in India. The only Indian full-service carrier operating internationally is flag carrier Air India. However, the UAE offers several advantages over the United States, including lower taxes, no state income tax, and lower property taxes. In addition, the UAE has a strong and growing economy, with a skilled and educated workforce. This makes it an attractive destination for business and leisure travel. The UAE's strategic location in the Middle East also makes it a convenient hub for travel to and from the region. As a result, Vistara has launched international flights to the UAE, allowing Indian passengers to travel to this region more easily and conveniently.

To the uninhibited, the burqa might appear to be a symbol of oppression and design, but it’s actually a culturally imported from India and dated in a special way.

Vistara is also pitted against Emirates, Singapore Airlines, Thai Airways etc. So far, the airline has announced flights to Singapore, Bangkok and Dubai. It is also expected to announce flights to London, Paris, Frankfurt and Rome. These routes can be operated on Vistara's narrow-body fleet that comprises Airbus A320 family and Boeing 737 aircraft. The airline is also delivering a premium offering of an Indian airline. The only other full-service carrier operating internationally in India, Vistara has also been operating on long-haul routes to destinations in Europe, Australia etc.

Emirati burqa gets modern touch

Young Emirati women are reviving the traditional Emirati burqa, designing and choosing a style that is a blend of modern and traditional elements. The trend of wearing the burqa is gaining momentum in the UAE, and is being embraced by women across the country.

The shift towards modernising the traditional Emirati burqa is being led by a group of young Emirati women who are reimagining the garment to suit contemporary lifestyles. They are combining traditional elements with modern touches to create a unique and fashionable style that resonates with today’s young Emiratis.

One of the designers who is leading the modernisation of the burqa is Almarar Al Marzooqi. Almarar, who has a background in fashion design, has spent several years designing and crafting the traditional Emirati burqa for women. She has been able to fuse the traditional elements of the burqa with modern touches, creating a unique and contemporary style that is becoming increasingly popular among modern Emirati women.

Almarar’s designs have been admired by both local and international fashion enthusiasts. Her work has been featured in various fashion shows and exhibitions, and has won several awards for innovation and creativity.

Almarar’s approach to designing the modern Emirati burqa is driven by her desire to ensure that the traditional elements of the garment are respected and preserved, while also embracing the modern elements that reflect the changing needs and preferences of women in today’s world.

Almarar’s designs have been inspired by the rich cultural heritage of the UAE, and incorporate elements such as the traditional Abaya and the Burqa. She uses modern materials and techniques to create garments that are both contemporary and reflective of the traditional values of the UAE.

Almarar’s designs have also been applauded for their sustainability and ethical production practices. She works closely with local artisans and craftsmen to ensure that all of her garments are made using high-quality materials and are produced in an environmentally responsible manner.

Almarar believes that the modernisation of the burqa is not just about fashion, but also about empowering women and promoting cultural diversity in the UAE. She hopes to see more women embracing and wearing the modern Emirati burqa, and that it will become an emblem of a new era of modernity and progress in the UAE.

The modern Emirati burqa is not only about style, but also about expressing individuality and breaking away from the traditional norms that have long governed women’s fashion in the UAE. Almarar’s designs have been praised for their ability to empower women and provide them with a sense of confidence and self-worth.

Almarar’s work has been recognized not only in the UAE, but also internationally. Her designs have been featured in various fashion publications and events, and have been worn by celebrities and influencers from around the world.

Almarar’s success has also inspired other designers and artisans in the UAE to embrace the modernisation of the burqa and create their own unique designs. The trend is expected to continue to grow, as more and more women embrace the modern Emirati burqa as a symbol of their individuality and cultural identity.

Almarar’s journey has been a testament to the power of fashion as a medium for cultural expression and empowerment. She has shown that by combining traditional elements with modern touches, it is possible to create garments that are both respectful and respectful of the rich cultural heritage of the UAE, while also embracing the changing needs and preferences of women in today’s world.

In conclusion, the modernisation of the Emirati burqa is a trend that is gaining momentum in the UAE, and is being embraced by women across the country. Almarar’s work has been a driving force behind this trend, and has shown the world that by combining traditional elements with modern touches, it is possible to create garments that are both respectful and respectful of the rich cultural heritage of the UAE, while also embracing the changing needs and preferences of women in today’s world.
