NEW DELHI: Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman met Prime Minister Narendra Modi in New Delhi on Monday to discuss how to move in the direction of cutting cumulative 110 basis points since Feb to help bolster growth, putting it ahead of its Asian peers in the cur-

Despite the gains, many are all aware that there are challenges which the busi-

in almost two decades and economy with car sales

tional measures.

Likely measures

The proposed surcharge on foreign portfolio investors (FPIs) may be revised through tweaking
in the tax structure.

For premium real estate the former also wants morto-ry and real estate sectors, screening, injecing liquidity with non-banking finance companies that had broadened their range to home and real estate sectors.

Among the steps being considered are offering CIF tax-relief to some segments in the automobile sector and restoring input tax credit for the real estate sector. But both these measures will have to be taken to the GST Council for discussion and it is a most point many states would be willing to forego revenues on this account. In the realty sector, there is a consensus between the industry and the govern-mint on increasing the tax rate.

Labour reforms boost Rajasthan’s MSME sector

AMRUT: Narendra Kumar Jain, president of Employer Association of Rajasthan, is a happy man, thanks to the labour reforms, initiated by Chief Minister Vasundhara Raje. "We wouldn’t have been able to save Rs 300 crore in the state, says Jain, who was the Central Labour Commissioner in 1998 and 2008. "The government has made a significant move by abolishing the Contract Labour Act, 1970 and the Contract Labour Amendment Act, 2016."

"Perfect synergy between government and the industries, which the group is currently in the process of setting up," said Jain. "The move will reduce the cost of production and will help us to pay more wages, while the workers will get a lot of benefits, including holidays and vacations."

"It was a big challenge to find workers to fill the vacancies," he added. "But now we can easily hire workers from other parts of the state, which will help us to increase our production and sales."

Career in creative writing

CHENNAI: Researchers at the Indian Institute of Technology Madras (IIT-Madras) have been working on “Osmotic Power” or power from osmotic pressure. This phenomenon, as the name suggests, is when the osmotic pressure that is generated when a semi-permeable membrane separates water from a solution having a different concentration of ions, can be converted into electricity.

The first osmotic power generation was built in 2009 in Telos, Norway, and produced 4 kilowatts of power, which, although sufficient to power a clothes dryer, is inefficient for any large-scale use, the Indian researchers noted.

In 2018, a team at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, found that membranes made of extremely thin layers of molybdenum disulphide can generate electricity when they are exposed to osmotic pressure.

The Indian team, led by Nandigana Gagan Deepak, said that the basic principle of osmotic power generation is based on the observation that as the concentration of ions in two solutions varies, the osmotic pressure generated by the solvent will vary. This causes one solution to pass through a permeable membrane and generate electricity. The permeable membranes used in osmotic power devices can thus be considered as osmotically active.

Nandigana and his team, from the University of Illinois team, have shown that the permeable membranes could be used to generate power density of 1 kW/m². Nandigana’s team has sufficient experience in this field in the Nature Rev. Materials journal, and presents a detailed discussion of the membrane’s performance and its potential use in the future.

According to the statement, in the future, osmotic power may be able to produce osmotic power of 1 MW per square metre. Nandigana was also a part of the University of Illinois team.

In a recent study published in the Nature Rev. Materials journal, the researchers have shown that the new bio-membrane can help to produce osmotic power in an efficient way.

The new bio-membrane would also have a high surface area, which is important for the successful operation of osmotic power devices.

“Osmotic power generation has the potential to be a viable energy source in the future,” said Nandigana, who is also the director of the Centre for Osmotic Power at IIT-Madras.

“With the help of osmotic power, we can generate electricity without the use of fossil fuels, which is a major concern in today’s world. The new bio-membrane developed by our team can help to achieve this goal,” he added.

 Researchers discover new pain organ in skin

A recent study suggests that the skin contains a previously unknown sensory organ that is sensitive to hazardous conditions and impacts. Researchers at Karolinska Institute have discovered this new sensory organ in the skin that is sensitive to hazardous environmental stimuli, that is capable of detecting painful mechanical and chemical stimuli, and that may be important for the body’s response to injury.

What is the new sensory organ?
The new sensory organ is composed of glia cells with multiple long projections that collectively go to make up a mesh-like organ within the skin. It is characterized by being a novel sensory organ in the skin, and it is sensitive to hazardous and stressful conditions.

How was the organ discovered?
The organ was discovered using a combination of imaging techniques, including optical and electron microscopy, and by observing the responses of the organ to various stimuli.

What are the implications of this discovery?
The discovery of this new sensory organ opens up new possibilities for understanding how the body responds to injury and how it adapts to hazardous conditions. It may also have implications for developing new strategies for pain management and treatment of pain-related disorders.

 Keep in mind that this is still preliminary research and further studies are needed to fully understand the function and significance of this new sensory organ.

T he government is mulling liberalising the long-standing Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) policy as part of its efforts to revitalize a faltering economy. Nevertheless, tweaking FDI limits will not be enough to allay investor concerns and ensure a smooth flow of foreign capital to India. It will be necessary to address a range of other issues such as simplification of policies, reduction in tax rates, and taking additional steps to improve the business climate. Thus, it is crucial to ensure that the government’s efforts to liberalise FDI are not undermined by other reforms that could dampen investor confidence. Given the importance of FDI for India’s economic growth, the government must take a comprehensive approach that addresses both investment inflows and the overall business environment. In this regard, it is essential to strengthen the regulatory framework and ensure transparency and predictability in the tax system. The government’s efforts to liberalise FDI reflect its commitment to attract foreign investment and boost economic growth. However, it is imperative to ensure that these efforts are complemented by other policies that create a conducive environment for foreign investors. In conclusion, while the government’s move to liberalise FDI is a positive step, it must be coupled with other reforms to create a comprehensive investment ecosystem that can drive sustainable growth.
Indians again top visitors to Dubai

Over 8.36m tourists visit Dubai in first-half of 2019

Saudi Arabia’s immediate neighbour, India, has again topped the list of tourists visiting Dubai during the first half of 2019.

The Department of Tourism and Commerce Marketing (Dubai Tourism) confirmed that 8,364,145 tourists visited the city in the first six months of 2019, compared to 8,172,913 during the same period in 2018, marking a 2.2 per cent increase.

Indian tourists accounted for 12.3 per cent of total arrivals during the first half of 2019, compared to 11.6 per cent in the corresponding period last year.

John Wright, Etihad Airways senior vice president marketing, said: “It is a significant milestone for Etihad Airways to have reached the 10 million mark in the Middle East, and a personal achievement for me as well. We have been able to achieve this in only 16 years, which is a testament to the dedicated team of professionals that have worked hard to drive growth in the region.”

Wright continued: “In 2003, Etihad launched its operations to the UAE and that year we transported 221,000 people to the UAE from India, the second biggest market after the US. Over the years, the channels have grown tremendously and now the UAE is our largest source market, with 3.3 million Indians on our books. “We see tremendous growth potential in the market and we want to continue to lead in the space and meet our customer needs.”

Wright noted the airline’s growing network of destinations in the UAE as key to its success in the market. “In the Middle East, we have 11 destinations and the network is growing fast, and we aim to add at least five more destinations within the next two years. “With our world-class service and the on-time departures, all our efforts are focused to ensure a seamless journey for our passengers, ensuring the growth in this market.”

Saudia’s Umrah visas this season

Saudia, the Saudi Arabian Royal Flight, launched its Umrah season campaign to promote theUmrah experience to the world. Saudia, in coordination with Saudi Arabia’s Ministry of Hajj and Umrah, announced the launch of its campaign: “The cheapest Umrah ever,” which will begin on 10 September and run until 31 March 2020.

Saudia’s campaign targets two things: the largest number of Umrah passengers, and the lowest Umrah cost. Saudia offers Umrah passengers a very competitive price, with the cheapest packages starting at SAR 8.500, less than the cost of a round trip ticket to Jeddah.

In May, Saudia increased its flights to Jeddah and Madinah to 15 weekly flights, to meet the growing demand of Umrah passengers.

The airline launched its Umrah experience campaign in coordination with the Ministry of Hajj and Umrah, the Saudi Royal Commission for the Holy Sites, and the Royal Commission for Tourism, in several countries, including the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Italy, India, and Pakistan.

As part of this campaign, Saudia launched special Umrah fares, which offer up to 40% discount on Umrah flights, along with the option to book Umrah packages.

Saudia also announced that it will launch new Umrah flights to the cities of Qunfudah and Al-Madinah through its subsidiary company, Saudi Arabian Airlines (Saudia). This will allow Umrah pilgrims to fly directly to their destination cities, avoiding the need to fly via Riyadh.

The airline also launched a new Umrah website, umrah.saudia.com, to provide pilgrims with all the necessary information and services related to Umrah travel.

Saudia, the national airline of Saudi Arabia, has been providing Umrah services to millions of pilgrims for over 40 years, and has always been committed to offering the best Umrah experience to its passengers.

Saudia’s Umrah fare includes a round trip flight to Jeddah or Madinah, pickup and drop-off services to the airport, a private lounge at the airport, and a special Umrah package.

The airline’s Umrah package includes a guaranteed place in a hotel, a private visa, and a special Umrah guide.

Saudia’s Umrah season campaign will run until 31 March 2020, and pilgrims are encouraged to book their flights and packages early to ensure availability.

Saudi Arabia first non-officially operated cinema opens in Jeddah

Saudi Arabia has opened its first non-officially operated cinema, a move seen as a significant step towards liberalising the entertainment sector in the country.

The cinema, located in Jeddah, is part of a wider initiative by the Saudi government to encourage the growth of the entertainment industry and to provide more choices to the Saudi public.

The cinema is operated by the Muvi Cinemas company, which has a number of other cinemas across the country.

The cinema has a capacity of 1,950 seats and is equipped with state-of-the-art technology, including digital screens and 3D technology.

The cinema also offers a range of food and beverage options, including a variety of snacks and beverages.

The move is seen as a significant step towards liberalising the entertainment sector in Saudi Arabia, where cinema halls were previously restricted to the country’s expatriate community.

The cinema is expected to attract a large number of moviegoers, especially young people, who are keen to enjoy the latest Hollywood and Bollywood movies.

The cinema is also seen as a move to enhance the country’s cultural and entertainment offerings, and to attract more tourists to the country.
