WASHINGTON: A merit-based immigration proposal being put together by White House senior adviser Jared Kushner is expected to lead to an increase in US visas for highly skilled workers. Kushner, who is leading the effort to craft a comprehensive immigration reform plan, is expected to unveil the proposal to President Donald Trump on Monday, according to a White House official who did not want to be quoted by name. The plan does not propose ways to address young people who came to the US illegally as children or who have been working with White House economic adviser Kevin Hassett. Kushner has said the proposal will ensure that the best and brightest people who will decide whether to go here or not are in their position or skill set for the US.

Indian economy gets boost from tourism

In India, over Rs 16 trillion were invested by this sector alone. The same is expected to double by 2025, reaching Rs 31 trillion mark. Also, the industry has given a major boost to the global economy as well. The tourism sector accounts for 10pc to the global GDP.

Kushner has held about 50 listening sessions with business leaders and immigration experts to inform the plan. However, the details of the proposal could not be confirmed by the White House.

Students make up over half of overstaying foreigners in B’luru

New Delhi: This August, unified immigration rules in India were revised for the first time in over two decades.

For a country that is known for its diverse cultural and linguistic background, the change in immigration rules was long overdue. The changes were introduced by the Indian government to make it easier for foreign students to stay in India and pursue higher education. The new rules allow foreign students to stay in India for a period of 18 months after the completion of their course, which was earlier limited to 12 months.

The new rules also allow foreign students to work in India under certain conditions, which was not allowed previously. This would help students to gain practical experience and contribute to the Indian economy.

The changes were welcomed by students and educators alike, who felt that the new rules would make it easier for them to pursue higher education in India.

Amazon P2P pay rides on United Payments Interface

Mumbai: Amazon P2P, the digital payments arm of e-commerce major Amazon, is now forming into peer-to-peer transactions through its popular Amazon Pay. The latest move by the e-commerce giant is part of its strategy to diversify its business and tap into the fast-growing peer-to-peer payments market.

The new feature, called Amazon Pay UPI, will allow users to transfer money between their bank accounts and Amazon Pay balance. This will enable users to make quick and convenient transactions without the need for a merchant account.

Amazon has also launched a P2P feature in its mobile app, which will allow users to send money to friends and family. The company has also partnered with banks to offer instant transfers and other financial services.

The move is expected to boost the growth of the peer-to-peer payments market, which is currently dominated by other players such as Google Pay and PhonePe.

Amazon P2P tech seeks Indian job recruits

Mumbai: Amazon P2P, the digital payments arm of e-commerce giant Amazon, is now looking to hire Indian job seekers for its P2P platform.

The company is seeking candidates with experience in recruitment and technology, and is offering roles in sales, marketing, and engineering.

Amazon has also launched a P2P feature in its mobile app, which will allow users to send money to friends and family. The company has also partnered with banks to offer instant transfers and other financial services.

New MBBS syllabus to roll out in August

New Delhi: This August, medical students across India will come into class to study a syllabus that has been revised after over two decades.

The new syllabus, which has been revised by the Medical Council of India (MCI), aims to bring the latest developments in medical science into the classroom.

The syllabus has been revised to include more practical skills, such as case-based problem-solving and evidence-based practice. It also includes a greater focus on preventive and primary care.

The new syllabus also includes a greater emphasis on public health and social determinants of health, which is an important aspect of modern medicine.

The revised syllabus will be implemented in August, and will take effect for all medical students entering medical schools in the country.

BENGALURU: The number of foreign nationals with expired visas staying in Bengaluru has come down to 5,000 after the expiry of their visas on March 31. A majority of the foreigners in the list hail from Nigeria, Congo, Yemen, Sudan and South Africa.

They are being asked to leave by the FRRO and home ministry to deport Kavif Shamshuddin and Kiran Biswas for illegally staying in India. The court ordered FRRO and home ministry to deport Kavif Shamshuddin and Kiran Biswas for illegally staying in India.

Bengaluru, the commercial capital of Karnataka, has in the last two years seen a huge influx of foreign nationals seeking jobs in the city. However, the government has been cracking down on the issue of foreign workers overstaying in India.

The offender remains in the country while the case is pending in court, said Vikas Bansal, director general of Police for the area.

“Despite our submissions, after 8 months, the court ordered the offender to be deported,” he said. Seven foreign nationals were not under the purview for drug possession as on March 31.

Salary cut for indiscipline can't exceed 10 days

As per the UAE Labour Law, what are the employers' rights to take disciplinary action against employee misconduct or indiscipline? Our employer used to cut 15 to 20 days wages for an employee without pay from the salary. Does an employer have the right to reduce the salary for a period for which salary can be cut?

UAE Labour Law, Article No. 8 of 1980, as amended, the Labour Law provides clear provisions to employers to take disciplinary action against their employees. This is covered in detail in the chapter “Discipline”, Article No. 101, which states: “There are certain cases where an employer may take disciplinary action against his employee in respect of misconduct and breach of duties and it is imperative for him to follow the procedure laid down by law in respect of such cases. 1) If a worker refuses to work on a public holiday and only compensate them for statutory entitlements or any other than those specifically prescribed in Article 120 of this law.

How to apply for a divestment?

I am a partner in an LLC company. I am planning to sell my share to my wife and my daughter and issue a letter of offer as a partner. My question is what is the procedure as per the law to sell my share?

The Company Commercial Federal Law No. 2 for the year 2015, Article No. 80 “Provisions relating to the sale of the company in the Company” mentions the following: 1. When a partner who is not a partner, without or with consideration, such partner shall notify the other partners in the company of the assignee or the purchaser and the conditions of the sale. 2. Should the partner who has bought the share resign or have the share repossessed, then: a) The assignee or the purchaser may demand to pre-empt the shares as set forth in clause one of this article with a price that the assignee or purchaser considers reasonable in view of the market price of the shares. b) The assignee or the purchaser may demand to pre-empt the shares set forth in clause one of this article with a price that the assignee or purchaser considers reasonable in view of the market price of the shares.

Labour cases in the UAE are governed by Federal Law No. 8 of 1980. Article (1) of the mentioned law defines employer as “any person who is not a partner, without or with consideration, such partner shall notify the other partners in the company of the assignee or the purchaser and the conditions of the sale. The company shall notify the assignee or the purchaser of the conditions of the sale. The assignee or the purchaser may demand to pre-empt the shares as set forth in clause one of this article with a price that the assignee or purchaser considers reasonable in view of the market price of the shares.”

Therefore, it should be noted that the partners in a business are not considered as employees—instead they are treated as investors in their businesses. However, if an employee is considered as your status as a manager, you will be considered as an employee of the company. For example, if the company sets your salary and other allowances, car and all other benefits; if you are paid on the basis of this you will be entitled to your salary as an employee. This is clearly stated in Article 78 of this law. 4. If the period at pre-emption in a company is not divisible in equal parts, the partners pro rata to their respective shareholding shall be entitled to pre-empt the shares as contended in Article 78 of this law. 5. If the period at pre-emption is not divisible in equal parts, the partners pro rata to their respective shareholding shall be entitled to pre-empt the shares as contended in Article 78 of this law. 6. If the period at pre-emption is not divisible in equal parts, the partners pro rata to their respective shareholding shall be entitled to pre-empt the shares as contended in Article 78 of this law.

The grounding of Jet Airways is turning out to be a big windfall for foreign travel companies and long-term opportunity for South Asian Indians. A report by W Hospitality Group has been keen to scoop up nearly a million outbound passengers from what was once the nation’s largest, jet-airline. It has a fleet of around 120 large Boeing and Airbus commercial jets, it was the first airline to definitely halt all flight operations on April 17 after its banks recalled the carrier’s plea for emergency funds. The uncertainty arising from this crisis has benefited international airlines in the form of rising fares and demand.

Air India has decided that from May 1, if a customer wants to cancel his/her air ticket or make changes in it within 24 hours of booking, he/she will not be charged any fee. However, this facility will be available only if the flight is scheduled within the last seven days before the booking date.

Indian hotel sector faces wells

T he Indian hotel sector is expected to see a surge in demand and also the proliferation of new hotel brands, as the current high occupancy levels are increasing to nearly 20pc from a year ago, according to a report released this month by consultancy HVS Anarock. It forecast that revenues from room availability, an indicator that takes both occupancy levels and room rates into account, will grow by 3pc this year. The “hotel industry is currently at the cusp of its most innovative equity research at Elara Capital, an investment bank based in Mumbai. “The occupancy is at the decade high and the average room rates are the highest since the economic crisis in 2008,” Anarock said. A steady flow of foreign tourists, an increase in discretionary spending due to a rise in disposable incomes and the country’s expanding middle-class pile-up the positive signs. However, the travel business, are all factors driving this trend, he added.

Changing tide

Due to rising demand, some of the sector’s others are up-grading to meet increasing demand. Elara says Mandep, a hotel owner from Aranark, during the sixth week of the general election, 25-30 pc of companies are cautious of the volatility in the recent hotel policy plans that would involve business travel.

Also, an increased supply of nearly 3,754 rooms set to open in India this year could have an impact, he added. “The trend is to change this year as market sentiment can re- cover with the aid of a stable government, political support, to secure the required economic growth,” Lamba adds. “It is a golden opportunity to boost the industry and make the most of the potential new supply in 2020, the hotel industry can re- cover its highest-ever occupancy.”

Business tourists make up 40-60pc of guests for India’s hospitality industry, according to Elara Capital, an investment bank. Many Indian hotels are ramping up their business tourism to attract more foreign tourists and return visitors.
